Center for Economic Analyses – CEA, started the implementation of Tax Responsibility Project – Towards civic responsibility and responsible tax.

The project aims to tackle and contribute to the challenge of increasing the social responsibility specifically tailored to Republic of North Macedonia approaching from both sides, the civic responsibility through evidence based research and education to boost tax morale and the government responsibility through increased transparency and awareness of the need for accountability. With this action we intend to pilot an innovative approach of behavioural economics in order to inform policy and improve public service and deliver positive results for people and communities on the issues of increasing tax morale and compliance.

Thus the goal is to contribute to advancement of civic responsibility in Macedonia through tax responsibility because building the tax citizenship requires inductively motivating and promoting active and responsible citizenship involved and aware of the social relevance of taxes and on the other hand the transparency and efficiency of any government expenditure to enable human development and social cohesion.

The expected results of the project are to contribute in determining the driving factors for the tax morale among citizens, to enhance the civic responsibility and tax compliance among the citizens and tax responsibility, while supporting for increased transparency, accountability and responsibility of the tax authorities for the citizens' money and promoting active engagement of the citizen in decision making.

The expected project duration is from January 2020 to December 2022.

This project is financially supported by the European Union, through the European Instrument for Democracy and Human Rights (EIDHR), 2018-2019 Supporting a civil society through Country-Based Support Schemes (CBSS).

The expected budget for the project implementation is 178,713.13 EUR.
